

TREATING BIPOLAR DISORDER

“TREATMENT IS NOT THE END OF THE POSSIBILITY FOR ACHIEVEMENT; IT IS THE BEGINNING.” — NATIONAL ALLIANCE ON MENTAL ILLNESS

THREE STEPS TO WELLNESS

STEP 1

- Take medication to control or eliminate symptoms
 - Medication must be taken daily to work effectively and to help you function better. This is true even when you feel well
- Maintain an open, honest dialogue with your treatment provider about the benefits and side effects of your medication

STEP 2

- Talk to a counselor and/or attend a support group to learn skills to manage your symptoms and cope with the stresses that can trigger episodes

Counseling can be provided by a

- Psychiatrist
- Psychologist
- Social worker
- Psychiatric nurse
- Case manager

STEP 3

- Develop healthy habits and a balanced lifestyle
 - Get enough rest and sleep, and maintain a consistent sleep schedule
 - Limit use of alcohol and other substances
 - Eat a well-balanced diet
 - Get regular physical activity
 - Stick to a regular daily schedule
 - Stay connected with family and friends
 - Develop ways of coping with stress (for example, practice meditation or relaxation exercises, keep a sense of humor)
